FIND CHURCH PROPERTY IN THIEF'S LOOT

Reports received at the office of Sheriff J. J. McGrath yesterday indicated that property stolen from a number of Catholic churches in this vicinity has been located and much of it identified. Among the churches pillaged and whose property was found among the loot were those of Menlo Park, Portola and Los Altos.

The property stolen consisted of vestments, vestments of the priests, altar furnishings, and other articles which might have an intrinsic value. Priests of the various churches entered by the vandals were now occupied with the task of identifying the various objects belonging to their churches.

The find was made in the south part of the state, according to reports of the sheriff's office.

Dr. Marvin Dies At Home Here

Death came Wednesday afternoon to Dr. G. D. Marvin on his home on Ashley avenue. Dr. Marvin was a retired physician and made his home in this city for a number of years, during which he and Mrs. Marvin had become extremely popular and had built up a large circle of friends.

Dr. Marvin was a native of Michigan and was 66 years old. He had been a resident of California for the past 40 years and was for many years physician at the state hospital at Agnew. Of recent years he had been acting as chief surgeon on a liner of the Navigation Company, plying between San Francisco and Honolulu.

Dr. Marvin is survived by his wife, Mrs. Minnie Gene Marvin. The mother passed away recently at the Marvin home here. Funeral services will be held Sunday at 10 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Marvin, 106 F. & A. M., of which Dr. Marvin was a member.

The remains are now at the parlors of the James Crowe Company at this city, and will be sent to Santa Rosa this afternoon.

In addition to his Masonic connections in Arcata, Dr. Marvin was a member of San Jose Commandry No. 1, Mystic Shrine, and Sequoia Chapter of the Eastern Star of this city.

The members of the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church held a pleasant social afternoon at the home of Mrs. VanderKamp Wednesday in San Carlos Manor.

CEMENT WORKER KILLED BY TRAIN

Caught between two moving freight cars at the plant of the Pacific Portland Cement Co. of this city Wednesday Tony Costa of Roosevelt avenue was seriously injured that he died within a few minutes of the accident. Costa, who was employed as a laborer at the plant, was on the freight train when it began to move. He was caught by the moving train and so severely injured that he died before help could be given him, although Dr. H. C. Clattenburg, the plant physician, was immediately summoned.

Costa was 40 years of age. He leaves a wife and three young children. This accident is the first serious accident which has occurred among the workmen of the Pacific Portland Cement Co. plant here since it was opened about four years ago.

An inquest was held yesterday morning at the parlor of the Layne & Tinney Co. of this city by Dr. J. C. McGovern, county coroner. Here it was found that Costa had come to his death from internal hemorrhage due to crushing injuries received at the cement plant.

The funeral will be held at 9:30 this morning at Mt. Carmel Catholic church. Interment will be in Holy Cross cemetery at Menlo Park.

Inquest Held For Man Killed In Still Wreck

An inquest was held in Half-moon Bay Tuesday evening by Coroner J. C. McGovern into the death last week of Primo Bellourino, who died when a large still he was operating near El Granada exploded.

No evidence was adduced at the inquest to show that any except the dead man knew of the existence of the still or of his illegal manufacture of liquor. An autopsy revealed that the dead man had suffered first degree burns, concussion of the brain and shock, resulting in his death.

The still, which Bellourino was tending and which exploded was one of the largest ever brought to the jail yard here. The explosion caused the bottom of one of the retorts to be blown out. The cause of the explosion is not definitely known, but deputies of the sheriff's office expressed the opinion that the retort had been filled too full and that the skum rising to the surface had been forced into the delivery tube blocking the passage of the distillate and causing the pressure to raise to the bursting point.

Arsonist Blamed For Store Fires

Believed to have been fired by arsonists the Live Oak Market and Groceries in Woodside was completely burned to the ground Saturday night. The fire was given impetus when a fifty gallon tank of kerosene in the grocery store exploded and threw its inflammable contents throughout the burning interior, so that the fire department was unable to check the flames until the building was razed.

The building was the property of Ole Johnson, at one time a proprietor of the Central Market of this city. The meat department was leased by Johnson to Lee Beck, while C. Meng had leased the grocery. The stock of both stores was a complete loss.

Almost at the same time as the store fire, a small tract office belonging to Mark A. McCann near Woodside, was also burned. This is also believed to have been the work of an incendiary. Both cases are being investigated by the police, who believe that some connection may be found between the burning of the real estate tract office with a similar fire which occurred in an office belonging to the Koff Realty Co. at San Carlos some months ago and destroyed the building, and with the bombing of the Leonard & Holt tract office on Jefferson avenue in this city a few weeks ago. It is believed that the depredations may be the work of some person with an antipathy toward real estate men, and a careful watch is being kept on other real estate offices of this section.

PIONEER OF MENLO DIES IN OAKLAND

By D. E. O'KEEFE

Over in Berkeley on Tuesday there passed away an old Menlo Park pioneer Mrs. H. B. Crawford, aged 89 years. She was the mother of Dr. A. E. Blake, a member of the Menlo Park City council. Mrs. Crawford was one of the earliest residents of Menlo Park having arrived here in the early fifties. Her relatives and herself played an important part in the development of this community. Their names are indelibly identified with the early history of this locality. In the fifties Captain George C. Johnson, a noted navigator, purchased from Oliver and McGlynn a large tract of land, extending from the highway to the cemetery creek to Valparaiso avenue comprising hundred of acres. Oliver and McGlynn called the tract Menlo Park after their castle on the hills of Tara in Ireland. It was in this manner that the town received its name. Johnson brought his pretty niece with him, Mrs. Crawford. He erected an imposing home near Santa Cruz avenue, and here came the elite of that time to pay court to the beautiful girl. Menlo Park then was a jungle. A trail to Camino Real made by the padres in journeying from Mission Santa Clara to Mission Dolores in San Francisco. As a girl she romped around Menlo Park and frequently saddled her pony and would ride to San Francisco, then a small village. In after years she wrote and spoke of her girlhood in Menlo Park in the fifties. The Johnson home was the first erected in Menlo Park. It was a show place in early days and was wrecked when Camp Fremont was established in 1917.

Mrs. Crawford grew to beautiful womanhood, was charming and cultured and had a talent for writing, many of her articles appearing in the ancient files of the Times-Gazette. At an early age she married Dr. Blake, one of the pioneer dentists of San Francisco. He was also an inventor having designed many of the methods in vogue today in the dental profession. The young couple lived in the old home and it was here that the counsellor was born and he, too, like his mother, romped on the grassy fields of Menlo Park in his boyhood.

Robert C. Johnson, a cousin of the deceased, donated the land on which the Presbyterian church is located. Another cousin gave a large tract of land to the late Archbishop Riordan on which is erected St. Patrick's Seminary. She also donated a tract of land comprising Valparaiso Park in town to endow Mary's Help hospital. The land was sold a few years ago by the archbishop and the proceeds turned over to the institutions. The Johnsons were munificent and liberal with their earthly goods and Menlo Park owes much to them.

Mrs. Crawford left the community many years ago and had been forgotten for she was the last of a coterie of pioneers that lived here in years remote. They have all answered the final summons and she is the last to join those kindred spirits in the Valley of the Shades. Mrs. Crawford will live long in the memory of her friends and her name will forever remain recorded in the annals of Menlo Park.

A Noble Enterprise

If business men would so conduct The program of their lives That they could be more helpful to Their children and their wives, Oh, what a splendid record of Contentment we should find, And what a priceless benefit Would come to all mankind!

A truly noble enterprise Is that of bringing cheer And peace of mind and happiness To those a man holds dear; And marriage is a partnership That he should place above All other obligations, for Its covenant is love.

Yes, home-life should receive the best Attention men can give. They ought to counsel with and help Their partners while they live; And surely they should ever guard Against that doubtful day When circumstances unforeseen May summon them away!

MARIONETTES WILL PRESENT TWO SHOWS

The Marionettes will travel here from Los Angeles in a large and unusual looking motor at a rate of speed will within the limit of the law. If you see a crowded-looking truck being very slowly toward the Sequoia high school on Friday, November 23, you may safely surmise that the famous Kegg and Goldsmith and Goldsmith-Engle Marionettes are coming here to play "Cinderella" and "The Nightingale," a beautiful Chinese fantasy, with their super-marionettes.

The Marionette Theatre is a portable art theatre, completely equipped with the most elaborate lighting apparatus, beautiful stage scenery, rich velvet draperies, and all the equipment necessary for a modern art theatre.

A large company of professional actors and musicians will arrive with this unusual troupe, who will pull the strings and direct the marionettes through their singing speaking and dancing parts.

CARL WAGNER TALKS ON PLANS OF CONSOLIDATION

Important facts in regard to the proposed consolidation of this county with San Francisco were brought out in an address delivered before the Redwood City Exchange Club Tuesday evening by Carl Wagner, manager of the Redwood City branch of the Bank of Italy. Wagner has given the Bureau of Governmental Research of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce on the feasibility of consolidation considerable study, and the club members benefited by his time given to this subject. His talk was based entirely on the findings of the report, without reference to personal opinion.

The first talk on historical events of American history was given by Dr. Langston on the Panama Treaty which was signed Nov. 18, 1903. The talk was well prepared and this innovation is expected to be very beneficial to the club members.

Through the courtesy of Otis J. Cosgrave manager of the Sequoia theatre and Arkush Entertainment Company, the third annual Exchange Club Christmas party for the kiddies of the community will be held some time in December. The exact date has not yet been decided. At the meeting Tuesday evening President Langston appointed a committee composed of Stanley Netherton, Carol Hall, Wilbur Duxee, Jim Eva and Francis Tinney to arrange for the event. This event is looked forward to with great pleasure by the children, and this year it is planned to make it even better. The chairman of Tuesday's meeting was Stanley Netherton.

Romero Gets Six Months In County Jail

Jose Romero wood cutter of this city, who has been held in the jail here on a charge of murder since the death in September at the Base Hospital in Menlo Park of Frank Loper from a gun shot wound, this week entered a plea of guilty to manslaughter. He was sentenced yesterday by Judge Buck to a term of six months in the county jail.

The shooting of Loper occurred on June 17. After celebrating the wedding of a friend for two days Loper and his wife, Jose Romero and Frank Reposa, all guests at the wedding celebration left and went to the Loper house, where the feast was continued. Later Romero and Reposa left. Later Romero returned with his partner in a wood cutting business, Blas Higuera, and stated that Loper had robbed him of $375 which he had had with him. Chief of Police Collins was told that he then began shooting. Loper was shot in the abdomen. Mrs. Loper was struck in the elbow and Romero was shot himself in the foot.

Romero was given a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace E. L. McAuliffe, and held to answer to the Superior court on a charge of murder. With the consent of the prosecution the charge was changed to manslaughter owing to conflicting evidence adduced at the hearing.

Hits Constable; Will Visit Judge

It is thoughtless of a driver to run into another machine and then drive away without stopping to see what damage has been done but when the car struck happens to be an officer of the law, the poor judgment indicates extremely poor judgment. This is the conclusion to which Frank Repetto came to on Wednesday when he was arrested by Constable Grill on a charge of reckless driving.

Grill was bringing an attached car into town on the Woodside road on Tuesday when another machine side-swiped him and hit his machine onto two wheels and shoved it toward the ditch. Grill managed to right the machine, and when the driver of the other car failed to stop, set out in pursuit.

He caught up with the other car at the highway, but when the other driver saw that he was being chased a race began which took in most of the city's streets. The two cars raced through a number of streets in the southern part of town, returned to the highway, then to Jefferson, into Vera back into the highway, and down to Rogers, then into Arguello. It was by this time becoming dark, and when the chased car struck away from the road into a plowed field, Grill stopped and fired several shots in order to bring the driver of the other machine to a halt. But the other driver continued on his way and was lost in the darkness.

But during the chase, Grill had obtained the license number of the machine, and through this was able to find the name of the owner. It proved to be Frank Repetto, 27, a gardener of Woodside. Grill went to Repetto's residence the next day and found Repetto busy hammering dents out of his fenders. He placed him under arrest and brought him before Justice of the Peace McAuliffe on the reckless driving charge. He is now out on $250 cash bail.

STANFORD STUDENTS LEARN OF THE LAW

A number of Stanford students who despite the warnings of a workman at the Mangini ranch at Portola loaded a pile of lumber onto a truck and removed it to Palo Alto in order to add it to the Stanford bon fire, caught without the law. When they arrived at the scene of the fire they were greeted by Deputy Sheriff C. A. Callaghan of this county and Deputy Sheriff Free of Santa Clara county. After some persuasion by the two officers the students returned the lumber to its rightful owner.

MAN FACES CHARGE OF DRUNK DRIVING

Earl Drals, a real estate salesman from Mill Valley will face a charge of driving while drunk when he appears before City Judge Mansfield of San Carlos on December 6. Drals is now in the county jail for lack of $1000 cash bail, following an accident which occurred on the highway in front of the San Carlos postoffice, and which resulted in injuries to five persons.

Drals accompanied by a Mrs. Ralph Kantz, of San Francisco, was going north on the highway, and is alleged to have swerved directly in front of a car driven by James C. Caldwell of Belmont and in which Miss Dorothy Thompson and Miss Leslie Tudhope, both of this city, were riding.

In the crash which ensued Miss Tudhope received severe internal injuries; Miss Thompson received a broken leg, and Caldwell a fractured skull. Mrs. Kantz suffered a broken leg and Drals escaped with a scalp wound.

"Mrs. Kantz, Drals and Caldwell were taken by passing motorists to the Mills Memorial hospital in San Mateo. The two girls were taken to the Community hospital at Beresford.

Caldwell swore to a warrant of arrest for Drals on the charge of driving while drunk, while at the hospital his condition was said to be "alcoholic." Chief of Police E. J. Wheeler of San Carlos stated that he had three witnesses to testify that Drals was drunk at the time of the wreck. If this proves true in court Drals will be held for trial in the Superior court as drunken driving constitutes a felony.

Miss Hohn and T. J. Seits Wed

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Hohn at 47 Whipple avenue was the scene of a pretty wedding Sunday afternoon when Miss Dorothy Hohn became the bride of Mr. Theron J. Seits of Geyserville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. J. Currie, of the First Congregational church of this city, in the presence of the immediate families of both parties.

Miss Hohn was attended by her sister, Mrs. A. J. Phillips of this city and Ray Hoskinson of Healdsburg, was best man. Miss Hohn carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley, while Mrs. Phillips' bouquet was of Cecil Brunner roses.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hohn of this city and is a popular member of the younger set of the community. For some time she assisted her father in the Broadway Groceries, where her pleasing and capable manner made her universal popular. She is an active member of Sequoia Chapter Order of the Eastern Star and holds an office in that order.

The bridegroom is a well-known rancher of the Northwest. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Seits of Geyserville and a prominent member of the Knights of Pythias lodge in Healdsburg.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. Lenor Campbell, who also sang "My Dearest Prayer," preceding the ceremony. Following the wedding the young couple left for Monterey, where they are spending their honeymoon.

The modern trend is toward wider highway arteries leading into and out of cities.

ANCIENT SILVER MINES

WHEN Hannibal was preparing to cross the Alps for his attack on Rome about 200 B. C., he worked the silver mines of Spain with slave labor to secure funds to pay his soldiers.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

A warning to the public against promiscuous cutting of Christmas trees on any mountain land without first securing the consent of the owner was issued a few days ago by State Forester M. B. Pratt. A campaign against trespassers is now being prepared, Pratt said. The department will have a special force of men at work to see that the law is enforced, Pratt said.

Though the state administration probably will not sponsor aviation legislation of its own this winter, it will favor enactment of a strong regulatory law, Alexander R. Heron, state director of finance, indicated recently. Heron said he personally favored licensing of planes, air fields, flying schools and pilots.

Out of every twelve of the 6000 children cared for in state institutions one is a whole orphan, with neither father nor mother; five are half-orphan and six have both parents living, the Department of Social Welfare reported last week. Seven out of twelve were entered by their parents, three were placed through the juvenile court, one through a social agency and one by relatives or friends. The average length of time children remain in the orphanages is less than two years.

Telling of the work done by the various committees of the California State Development Association, and outlining valuable statistics, a series of committee reports were made public by the organization recently. Forest fires on national reserves in California during 1928 burned over 681,918 acres and cost $689,889 to suppress, according to the report of the conservation committee of the association. Edward W. Murphy, chairman of the conservation committee, declared there were 1467 fires in the national forest, and in the entire state there was a total of 2000 fires, destroying a million acres and costing $1,000,000 to check.

Labor law amendments under which the eight hour working day for women would be made to apply to all female state employees are to be introduced at the January session of the Legislature, Will J. French, state director of industrial relations, so advised Governor Young and his cabinet last week, declaring that private interests are now making investigations looking toward introduction of the measure.

California's busy job has been securing jobs for the jobless, a total of 17,888 jobs being found during the past month, according to the State Department of Industrial Relations. About five men to one woman are looking for work, labor statistics show. The positions filled during October indicate 14,495 men were procured employment, while only 3383 women were found jobs. Los Angeles led in placement, with 6318 men and women, San Francisco following with 3214, and Oakland third, with 2482.

Legislative battle lines on the question of California's "gin-marriage" law already are being formed, with the prospect of a drive for its repeal at the winter session. Fred B. Wood, state legislative counsel, announced last week that he is framing a repeal measure at the request of Assemblyman H. E. Dillingham of Placerville. And Senator-elect George W. Rochester of Los Angeles, author of the "gin-marriage" statute while a member of the 1927 Assembly, is expected to wage a stiff fight for its retention.

With the arrest of Cal Young, P. Reed, William Coleman and Eugene Lytle, State, Federal and county authorities last week expressed belief they have checked counterfeiting operations in this State in which spurious $10 and $20 bills have been circulated. The four men were apprehended during a raid on a North Sacramento residence where an alleged counterfeiting die, ink and other paraphernalia were confiscated. The announcement said grand jury indictments will be sought.

Canned sardine exports from San Francisco during the nine months period this year ending October 1, were $42,196 pounds greater than the same period last year, but California canners received less for their pack, a department of commerce bulletin announced. Figures announced were: 1927, 26,120,895 pounds worth $2,320,063, and 1928, 26,662,080 pounds worth $2,204,835. The drop in price is attributed to intense foreign competition and to the fact that for the first time in several years the supply of California sardines during this period exceeded the demand.

Governor Young doesn't like careless, wild, inefficient automobile drivers. And he and Alexander R. Heron have outlined a complete and comprehensive plan which they believe will do much to curb the present evils due in part to reckless or inexperienced operators of automobiles. It is a program that will take about two years to complete, the governor said last week, but at the end of that period every person who ought to undergo an examination before a license to drive is issued will have a thorough test.

Senator Hiram Johnson, California's grand old man of the Republican Party, walked away with the race for United States senator from California. He defeated his Democratic opponent, Minor Moore, by a majority of more than 4 to 1.

You're worth $4,000, Mr. Average Californian, whether you have that much in the bank or not. Dr. Walter M. Dickie, State Director of Public Health, recently estimated that the average resident of this State has an economic value to society of $4,000. The average new born baby, he said, is worth $50.

Defeat of the grade crossing measure at the recent election will not hinder in the least the state's grade separation work. Bert H. Meek, director of the State Board of Public Works, has declared. Meek said that moneys derived from the gasoline tax will continue to cover the state's program of grade separation.

William John Cooper, State superintendent of public instruction and one of the outstanding sponsors of Proposition No. 6, the defeated educational reorganization measure on the recent election ballot, may resign following the next Legislative session, according to reports current in political circles.

Because of the so-called "alien verdict" used in California murder cases, Polson Prison's six Thanksgiving Day rioters were sentenced to the gallows on the vote of a juror who had "conscientious opinions" on the subject of capital punishment. That claim was made by J. J. Henderson, chief counsel for the six condemned convicts, in their final appeal before the State Supreme Court a few days ago.

A gain of 63,399 motor vehicles in the first nine months of the year in California over the same period of 1927 was revealed in figures made public recently by the State Division of Motor Vehicles. The registration for the first nine months of 1928 was 1,800,552, as against 1,736,795 for the same period of 1927. A total of 1,542,945 pleasure passenger cars were registered for the nine months; 176,216 pneumatic tired trucks; 35,941 solid tired trucks; 1130 motorcycles, and 36,059 trailers.

Ten million population with proportionate increase of industrial, commercial and agricultural activity by 1935. According to the California Development Association, this is a conservative estimate of California development during the next seven years. Preparing for this greater California with doubled population the association started a few days ago an education and membership campaign to continue to November 23.

California babies are worth $23.70 a pound. "The baby crop" weighed 112½ tons for the first five months of this year and had a value of $5,332,500. This unique "crop report" was compiled last week by L. E. Rosa, chief of the State Bureau of Vital Statistics, and indicated that California births for 1928 will exceed those of last year. The five months on which comparative statistics are now available show arrival of 34,621 infants in 1928, and only 33,363 for the same period in 1927.

Things are being moved around a bit at the State Capitol these days. The former State Library quarters are being remodeled for occupancy by the controller and purchasing agent some time this month. Offices of the Attorney-General and Appellate Court have been moved into the new library building and the Adjutant-General, whose offices are in a downtown building, is to occupy these quarters before the month is out. The post office at the Capitol also is to have new rooms.

California will lead all the other states of the Union in her extensive park program made possible by the ratification of the $6,000,000 park bonds, State Forester M. B. Pratt declared a few days ago. Pratt predicts that other states will follow California's splendid example in protecting her beauty spots as playgrounds of the future. Exceedingly pleased that the people approved of the bonds, the state forester said: "This fund makes possible the acquisition of many natural scenic wonders which it would be difficult to secure at a later period. The state now is all set for a wide expansion of its state park system, the $6,000,000 being matched by a like amount of private donations, an expansion which will pay huge dividends in the way of increased health and happiness."

With courts co-operating in commitment of "dope" victims, the number of patients at the new State Narcotic Hospital has increased from ten to thirty-five during the last month, Earl E. Jensen, director of institutions, reported to Governor Young recently. Facilities are now available for only 150 additional patients, Jensen said. Several persons sent to the institution have escaped, however, he reported, and judges will be asked to exercise discretion in future commitments of narcotic addicts who are also desperate criminals.

With the total of 14,747 deer already reported killed during the season that closed on October 15, it is expected the number brought down by the hunters' guns will exceed 19,000 when all figures are assembled. Fred G. Stevenot, head of the state department of natural resources, said last week. Stevenot declared deer are plentiful in California and are increasing in number.

Refrigerating facilities are to be installed in two more vessels of the Kerr line between San Francisco and the Orient to accommodate 800-ton cargoes of fruits and other perishables. The announcement is made by H. S. Scott, president of the General Steamship Corporation, which is operating agent for the fleet of four motorships now on the run. The new ships, the Silverash and the Silverbeech, have been promised for the coming season. They will make possible a sailing every twenty-three days from San Francisco, Scott said.

California County hospitals and farms have a population of 12,234, according to tabulations made by the State Department of Social Welfare. Of the total, 5,063 are hospital patients and 7,171 custodial patients.

The first bill prepared for introduction at the legislative session this winter is 360 pages long, Governor C. G. Young announced a few days ago. The measure represents an effort by State officials to bring about complete codification of California school laws which hitherto have been scattered through the statute books.

Tabor, Iowa, is the terminus of a one-man railroad which is 11 miles long and which has been giving residents of the section excellent service for the past forty years. E. V. Stopper is agent, owner, general manager, conductor and sometimes even the engineer of this line, upon which the Interstate Commerce Commission has put a value of $125,000. The road runs between Tabor and Malvern. Mr. Stopper himself builds his cars and powers them with Ford engines.

POULTRY COMMON WINTER POULTRY ERRORS

In looking over the average poultry house in winter, the most common defects are as follows: Bare, damp floor, upon which the fowls stand and sometimes get rheumatism; broken windows, letting cold air blow upon the roosts or upon the fowls in daytime. Both the above will check laying, and are common causes of roup. Damp droppings left for weeks to heap under the roosts; lack of supply of water, obliging the hens to eat snow, thus stopping the eggs; lack of plenty of good, sharp grit, which alone is a sufficient cause of failure; lack of fresh meat and cut bone fed twice a week; overfeeding, overcrowding, and no inducement to scratch for a living. These are the most common and important mistakes, and those who wonder why their hens do not lay, will do well to go over the list. See that your house is tight, so that on cold windy nights the fowls will not suffer any more than can be helped. A good plan is to keep a barrel in the building, and the coldest nights put in the birds that are liable to have their combs freeze, and cover the barrel. Above all, do not crowd the fowls. During the long winter months, when they cannot exercise out of doors, they will need at least seven or eight feet square per fowl. Scatter some hay around and throw the grain into it. This will make them exercise and will be what they need, and the eggs will hatch better in the spring. Avoid feeding stimulants to fowls who are going to breed from, and do not give them any more food than they will eat up clean. The rest is very apt to be left and become filthy.

Another thing is, pure, fresh water; do not fall in this. You may think snow will answer, but it is not good for poultry and will make them poor. Warm the water on cold days. Fowls are always thirsty, and a great deal of roup is brought on by allowing them to drink impure water.

Breeders Retain About Half of Old Chickens

According to a study of the Missouri demonstration farm flocks, the farmers retained 55 per cent of their hens from one year to the next. Breeders of light breeds retained 58.4 per cent as compared to 52 per cent for the breeders of heavy breeds. It is thus seen that nearly one-half of the flock is replaced by pullets. This is good management practice, for early developed pullets will lay more eggs, especially during the winter periods, than will the old hens. In the case of the light breeds one would probably cull one-half each year. Thus if one starts with a flock of 100 pullets, he will retain 50 as one-year-olds, 25 as two-year-olds, 12 as three-year-olds, and possibly 6 as four-year-olds. This means that with breeds such as Leghorns, one can well retain them regardless of age, so long as they show signs of having been productive in the past. However, with the heavier breeds practically all should be disposed of at the end of the second laying season, and a higher percentage will be removed at the end of the first.

Poultry Facts

The best remedy for lice on scrub chickens is to get rid of the chickens.

If a farmer keeps chickens at all, he can afford to house them comfortably.

Don't make your hens pick a hole in the ice to get a little drinking water.

The old poultry house may be remodeled and made more comfortable at very little expense.

It is best to repair all leaks in the roof and sidewalls before winter, as dampness and drafts lead to colds and roup.

No similar amount of money can buy as much as a few dollars will buy in pure-blooded poultry.

Broiler chickens that are regarded in many quarters as a delicacy, are sent to market in too many cases in an unfinished condition.

A warmer, better ventilated poultry house can be had if a straw loft is used. Poles or boards may be laid across the plates and covered with straw, hay or corn stalks.

Geese should not be used for breeding purposes until they are two years old. A gander may be used the first season.

Winter egg production is largely obtained from pullets that are well grown, properly fed, and carry a surplus of flesh.

Hens will be healthier if they are not subjected to too much heat. There is rarely any need of a stove in a henhouse if the building is properly constructed.

It is a good plan to separate the early maturers from the others and put them in a pen by themselves. If the room is available, this will not hold them back and will give the other pullets a better chance to develop.

A straw loft may be a part of any poultry house that is high enough to provide plenty of head room for the operator. It makes the house warmer in winter and cooler in summer. It also absorbs a large amount of moisture that is given off by the fowls.

Thanksgiving

THANKSGIVING is, in the last analysis, a day of summing up; of striking a balance of the good and the bad; of setting up against what we should be thankful for that which others might be thankful to us. It is a humbling day, in fact, for no matter what we may have done in return for what we have received from life, we always find ourselves so inestimably in debt to the giver of all as to be unable even to comprehend our debt.

It is a fortunate time, too, that our forefathers chose for this of reckoning. It comes at a time of the year when we are prone to believe ourselves hard done by. Perhaps the tax bills have helped to create this impression, or maybe, it is a reminder from an insurance company, or the coal man's statement. But just stop and think. That is all that is necessary, and the thanksgiving will follow. For after all there is so much to be thankful for.

We of California are particularly in debt for thanks. For here with no floods to devastate, no blizzards to kill, no scouring wars or crushing tyrants, we live under conditions which to a vast majority of this world's human inhabitants would seem too good to be true. Yet in California even we sometimes forget to be thankful.

In this section we are particularly blessed. The past year has seen great changes. Our city has grown, and grown better as well as larger. Good roads have brought visitors, who have remained. Redwood City is looked upon throughout the state as one of the most promising cities of the country. For this we might be thankful.

The future holds great promise, too, for within the next year another railroad will be laying its tracks to our city. New industries with payrolls will be located here. The Skyline road will be completed to the Saratoga summit opening up one of the most scenic sections of California. For all these things the people of Redwood City may be thankful.

But above all may we be thankful for a land where peace and prosperity are the birthright of every citizen; where the sun shines upon happy homes and smiling fields. Where a day's work assures a good day's pay, and where the workman may enjoy the luxuries of life, and live in peace and contentment under his own roof.

The Price of Progress

MOTORISTS have demanded in the name of safety that the trees along the highway north of Burlingame be removed. We suppose that the move is logical and necessary, but it is one that we will be sorry to see taken.

The eucalyptus lined highway from Burlingame to Millbrae is one of the scenic spots of the county. We know of no prettier piece of road in the state than this short stretch with its tall interlocking gum trees forming a leafy arch overhead.

This piece of road has been noted by travelers who have sought out the beauties of many lands, and it is loved by many whose ways have never strayed far beyond their own county. When these trees are cut San Mateo county will lose one of its fairest treasures.

But progress is a ruthless thing. It smashes through the beautiful to make way for the useful. The picturesque gives way to the mundane, and no amount of beauty will suffice as a potent where the demon of speed sees fit to tearing his whirling way.

More and more the quiet lane is giving way to the broad paved highway; the winding road thru the woods is straightened and paved for greater speed; and few spots remain where one may wander aimlessly among the country by-ways, for country and by-ways alike are giving way to the progress and speed of the age.

But this is growth; that growth for which we have worked and to which we have looked forward. But with growth comes a loss of many spots which we have loved and enjoyed, and many there are who will feel a personal loss when the tall eucalyptus no longer stand guard along the highway.

Red Cross Membership Is Sound Investment, Business Leader Says

"We believe that individual membership in the American Red Cross is a sound investment yielding the investor tremendous returns in personal satisfaction," is the statement of William Butterworth, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in endorsing the twelfth annual roll call of the American Red Cross, Nov. 11-29. Mr. Butterworth's statement follows:

"The men engaged in carrying forward the business and industry of this nation are quick to respond, and respond generously, when human suffering calls for their assistance. They welcome the existence of an organization authorized by international treaty and congressional charter to act as their agency, and the agency of all the people, in providing relief in disaster and promoting their beneficial services to humanity. The nation's business men take particular pleasure in supporting The American National Red Cross because it has applied sound and efficient business technique and administrative methods without sacrifice of sympathy and understanding in the prevention and mitigation of human suffering."

"The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, as representative of the nation's business, has such confidence in the American Red Cross that it calls upon its member organizations to contribute to relief in disaster only upon Red Cross assurance that an appeal is necessary."

"We believe that individual membership in the American Red Cross is a sound investment, yielding the investor tremendous returns in personal satisfaction. The Red Cross is seeking to increase its membership to five million; the opportunity to join its ranks is presented by the Red Cross Chapters throughout the nation from November 11 to 29. It is good to be a link in this great chain of service reaching around the world."

(Signed) WILLIAM BUTTERWORTH, President, The Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

WOODSIDE

If one had desired to take a census of Woodside he might have attended the fire that destroyed the grocery store and butcher shop at the top of the Woodside grade on Saturday night. About ten o'clock of that night John Volpiano saw the rear of the grocery was in a blaze and turned in the alarm. The fire department reported quickly and the remaining population of Woodside reported a few minutes thereafter. Two lines of hose were run to the fire that by that time had gained such headway in the frail wooden structure that all hope of saving the building was gone. The building belonged to Ole Johnson, the grocery was run by W. G. Mang and Book Bros. were the proprietors of the Live Oak Market. The cause of the fire has not been determined. It is reported that a new building will at once be erected on the site of the old.

Clarence Dirks, captain of the University of Washington football team, visited with his parents at Woodside on Sunday.

Water Committee Completing Work

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 21--(CNB)—California's joint legislative water committee, ending up a two-year study of the proposed "co-ordinated plan" of water distribution and conservation, will tackle the final phase of its work following a series of hearings and conferences held in San Francisco and Sacramento this week.

Conferences opened in the Senate Chamber at Sacramento Wednesday, Nov. 21, and continuing through Thursday were devoted to the hearing of final testimony from land owners and the general public on all phases of the work, and consideration of the proposed Folsom Dam project. On Friday, the committee hoped to San Francisco for a two-day session devoted mainly to legal aspects of the program. At this hearing, a report was filed by a sub-committee of attorneys, stating what new legislation will be required to initiate the great $300,000,000 water program.

Plant Rubber Team Wins Athletic Prize

Defeating the Towne Motor Co. team by a score of 28 to 21, the Plant Rubber and Asbestos team last Thursday clinched the Sequoia Athletic Club's Industrial League Championship for the season and won the silver trophy offered by James P. Hearne. The Hearne trophy is a perpetual prize and must be won for two years by one team in order to be kept.

The Industrial League was sponsored by the Sequoia Athletic Club this year and has proved quite popular. Six teams entered the league. They were the Plant Rubber & Asbestos, Towne Motors, Michael & Anderson, Bulok Motors, P. G. & E. and Native Sons.

The last game of the season was played yesterday when the Plant Rubber team met the Michael & Anderson team.

The Sequoia Athletic Club will enter a team in the P. A. A. of San Francisco and will play in the near future.

C. OF C. SEEKS TO SELL MAPS

The sale of 52 maps of San Francisco, Redwood City and the intermediate points will be sought this week by the Redwood City Chamber of Commerce. The maps are to be made by a San Francisco map publishing house and were intended primarily as a detail map of San Francisco. Later South San Francisco was added to the territory included and still later San Mateo and Burlingame were added.

If the required number of maps can be sold in this city this section will also be added to the proposed map which will show all streets and lot numbers. The map will be 4 1/4 x 6 feet. Waterways, parks and other such features will be shown in color.

A meeting of the San Mateo County Fish and Game Club will be held Monday evening in the Cañon Cafe on Broadway, at which time J. B. Cuenin of the San Francisco Examiner will speak on Fish and Game. A large number of sportsmen of the county will be present.

PLEADS GUILTY TO MANSLAUGHTER

A plea of guilty to a charge of manslaughter was entered before Superior Judge George H. Buck Wednesday by Louis Reyes. Reyes was charged with having struck George Bassett on the head with a two-by-four timber, following an argument on the San Mateo bridge on which both men were employed. Bassett suffered a crushed skull and was thrown into the water by the blow. He was dead when his body was recovered by other workmen a few minutes after the blow was struck.

Reyes will be sentenced by Judge Buck on Saturday. The manslaughter charge carries with it a prison term not in excess of ten years.

J. J. McGrath, San Mateo's good looking sheriff, has just returned from San Bernardino, where he attended the annual convention of police officers association. Dairy Cow Shows Advance in Value

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 21--(CNB) By LAWRENCE MONFORT—The San Mateo County farmer has three good reasons as to the worth of his dairy story and an equal number as to his beef cattle, it appears today.

His own appraisal, as good as the rest, is not available, but that of the State Department of Agriculture is as well as a cross-section of assessed values gleaned by the State Board of Equalization from the tables of 55 county assessors this year. San Mateo, San Francisco and Yuba counties are the only ones which do not recognize livestock for taxation purposes.

Here are the two estimates on a per head basis which the agriculturalist may check against his own idea of the value of his dairy or range herds:

Agricultural department, dairy cows per head, $83.00; state average, $58.42.

Agricultural department, beef cattle per head $43.00; state average $18.32.

The dairy cow today is worth four percent more than two years ago on a basis of assessed value, which is now slightly under the 1924 peak figure of $38.45 and well over the 1926 average of $36.91. In four years the dairy stock census has increased from 556,684 to 575,621, the equalization board reports while the increase in assessed value has advanced about $1,500,000.

At the same time stock cattle have shrunk to 810,362 from a total of 893,313 in 1926 and 1,027,721 in 1924. The aggregate value of range stock, however, has somewhat recovered, gaining from $15,859,731 this year from the sharp drop taken in 1926, when the total state value was but $14,662,772 as compared with $17,585,596 in 1924.

Stanislaus leads the state in dairy stock with 66,148 head, Steyer county with 3761 purebred cattle on the rolls is leader in that class with Santa Clara county recording 1550.

While the San Mateo assessor's record, as checked by the equalization board shows no total of cattle. Of Department of Agriculture lists 9500 dairy cows, there as compared with 9260 last year and 5800 other cattle. The 1927 figure in the last classification was the same.

Public Opinion Hits Signboards

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 21--(CNB)—Declaring himself not satisfied with 100 percent banishment of advertising billboards from state highway rights-of-way, B. B. Meek, state director of public works today announced a new campaign to remove such advertisements on private property as obscure the view or distract from the attention of drivers to the detriment of safety.

If present laws are not adequate for this purpose, said Meek, the Legislature will be asked to provide legal backing for the drive to restore natural beauties to the vision of those who ride on the state's great highway system.

"Public sentiment is crystallizing against advertisers using signboards that obscure scenery along the state highways," said Meek. Already many advertisers have discontinued this means of publicity realizing that it is unpopular and are returning to the newspapers as the more efficient and ethical method of selling. Meek has three guesses as to the worth my judgment, once thoroughly aroused, will boycott advertisers, using roadside signs."

Better Health Longer Life
GORGAS MEMORIAL INSTITUTE

It's the Hips that Count; Estimate Your Normal Weight by Width, Too

By Dr. Raymond H. Franzen
New York City

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. The headquarters are at 1291 G street, N. W., Washington, D. C.) It isn't the height, it's the hips that count. At least the width of the body is more important in determining what a boy or girl should weigh than the length.

It has been customary for a good many years for boys and girls to step on the scales, watch the pointer go round to a stop, and then, knowing how tall they are, to refer to a table of figures to see whether they are above or below par in the game of weight. Most children survive the ordeal with smiling faces but one or two out of every five find themselves way below the tables and fit candidates for the under-nourished class.

The body is a cylinder that has diameter as well as height. Body frameworks vary, not only in height but in width and thickness.

The wide framework is meant to carry more weight of flesh and fat than a narrow framework even though the height is the same. For this reason the width and depth must be known as well as the height before you can say a person's weight is deficient.

The height-weight tables have, of course, been a valuable aid to health workers in the past. The experience gained from their use, and the new data available now, make it possible to construct new tables, which will be still better and more accurate.

My own studies of weight in relation to height include the measuring of 8,000 children of the fifth and sixth grades, from schools of seventy cities scattered over the country. Schools in these cities were studied by physicians and educators in the effort to find out how to make health programs more effective in the lives of school children. Body measurements and weight were but a part of the ground covered.

The calculations have been carried down to such a fine point that the relative importance of each body dimension in determining weight has been expressed. For instance, among 11-year old boys the width of hips is 30 per cent of the total influence determining weight, the depth of chest 25 per cent, breadth of chest 20 per cent, height 20 per cent and width of shoulders 5 per cent.

Another point is that the girth of the upper arm and of the calf fluctuates in proportion to weight. For children of similar body framework, the size of the calf is a good index to their weight. Measurements of girth and of weight. It is the size of the skeleton the body framework may have great importance in revealing susceptibility to disease, fatigue and future growth.

A child may be heavy without being fat, or fat without being heavy. In other words, the padding under the skin does not go hand in hand with total body weight. It is the size of the skeleton that is most important. Further study of the thickness of the padding under the skin may be very valuable in helping to interpret how well children are assimilating their food.

Many Dandruff "Cures" Useless or Harmful How to Care for Scalp

By H. A. Ingalls, M. D.
Roswell, New Mexico

Since time immemorial the hair and scalp have been neglected, with the result that the term "dandruff" has resulted in a false conception as to what really constitutes dandruff. From the number of so-called "dandruff cures" on the market for many years, it is apparently little understood. The chemical study of many of these advertised remedies shows they have no therapeutic value, and that some are positively harmful for the hair and the scalp.

Dandruff, from the average viewpoint, is the normal accumulation of the epithelial cells and sebaceous material that are to be found on the normal scalp, unless removed by frequent shampooing.

The body is constantly undergoing tissue change and the dead and useless material must be thrown off. In the skin, which includes the scalp, there are millions of small glands, called sebaceous, that furnish an oily secretion that softens and keeps pliable the covering organ of the body. It is this secretion that following the shampoo, restores luster and softens the hair within the period of a very short time, especially if the scalp is massaged and the hair brushed.

On the non-hairy portions of the body, the useless cells and oil secretions are washed and worn away, but on the scalp, if protected by hair, they must be removed by washing.

For this purpose the best material to use is soft water and a non-rancid soap having an oil base that will produce a good lather, and this should be used with friction to the scalp, using the fingers or a brush of moderate stiffness. When the cleansing process has been finished, clean, soft water must be used until all the soap and waste material have been removed.

The application of oils, or advertised preparations for the production of luster and combing qualities should be avoided.

The term "dandruff", in its true sense, should be used to describe that diseased condition of the sebaceous or oil producing glands that results in an excess flow of the natural oil, and that results in scalp irritation, which unless checked will result in baldness. This is marked by the accumulation of whitish scales, or crusts, that thickly cover the scalp and cling to the hair. Such a condition indicates needs of the services of a specialist in skin diseases for its relief.

The scalp should be cleaned when dirty following exposure, but under normal conditions should not be shampooed more than once each month. The massage following a shampoo should not be vigorous enough to injure a Million barbers can't be WRONG!

Stropping a razor blade can't be foolish—surely a super-keen blade must be preferable

YOU must know that after the first shave the cutting edge of the finest blade that can be made is a row of tiny jagged hooks—until it is stropped. Stropping smooths out and re-aligns these minute points. That's why barbers everywhere always stop before each shave. They've done it for 2,000 years.

And that's why shavers everywhere are eagerly adopting the famous new Valet AutoStrop Razor. Its automatic self-stropping device guarantees a perfect blade for each morning's shave. No trouble. A flip of the thumb—a few swift strokes—and the edge is as keen as can be. No need to remove blade to strop or clean it.

ENLO PARK

Kellogg estate on Park lane this week to Mr. Swartz, a San Francisco capitalist who paid $25,000 in improving property. Mrs. Kellogg is a daughter of the late Kate Johnson, who gave the land to St. Patrick's Seminary. The land now comprising Enlo Park and the adjacent territory running down to the ocean. A portion of the Kellogg estate was spent on the Johnson estate.

Mr. Hoover on last Sunday purchased a parcel of land in Enlo Park, on which he intended to erect a big meat market. It is to be a distant relative of the Hoover estate.

Mr. S. M. Shortridge, director of Washington last Saturday, began his labors in the next session which will convene on November 3. He has some important work to complete before the session begins. The session is very close to the president, Herbert Hoover. By the way, fate both men in Iowa. As boys they were together in the next session. Both men were in Washington simultaneously in 1921, one to be sworn in as a Senator, and the other to take the oath as secretary of commerce. When Hoover took the oath as president on March 4, Senator Shortridge was his side and as senator he supported all the measures proposed by the president.

Mr. Bracesso, one of the leading belles, is coming to work at the Hoover estate with sixty other women. Over a thousand letters had been written to her. The young lady is experienced. It is possible Mr. Hoover may call her to his attention when he becomes president.

Attorney White, the new owner of the E. W. Hopkins estate on Oak Grove avenue, is making vast improvements on the property. The attractive fence on Oak Grove avenue has been extended around to Laurel and acacia trees are being planted around the property, which will form a hedge and when spring time comes will burst forth in golden hue, saturating the atmosphere with a pleasing perfume. Mr. White some months ago drilled an artesian well which sends forth a large stream. The water is to be used to irrigate the oaks on the tract. The numerous wells in this community have taken away the lower strata which feeds the thirsty roots of the oak, so that water must be provided that the trees may keep their verdure. The problem of the future is how shall the peninsula retain its oaks, the pride and attraction of this section of the state.

The Feast of the Presentation was duly observed with appropriate ceremony at St. Patrick's Seminary on Wednesday. On the annual return of this day the priests ordained at the institution come back to renew their clerical promises. Seventy-five clergymen from all portions of the state were present Wednesday. As the years go on the number will be materially increased, so that in time to come a vast army of priests will wend their way back to their Alma Mater, not only to renew their pledges, but also to meet their classmates and friends of their younger years. The day will be one of the big events of St. Patrick's in the coming years.

The city council met in regular session last Tuesday evening, all members being present. Councilman Ellis asked that suitable resolutions to the memory of Mrs. Crawford, mother of Councilman Blake, be prepared and spread upon the minutes. The clerk was instructed to prepare the same.

A letter was read from Colonel Skeggs of the state highway commission, in answer to a communication from the council in reference to widening the highway through the city. Mr. Skeggs said that the commission had no intention of doing the work, but suggested that the city interest the citizens to the end that the improvement be done by the city itself. The communication was filed for future reference.

A petition signed by several residents of Stanford Park was read asking that certain lots on the Stanford boulevard be zoned to permit the erection of a bungalow court. The petition was ordered filed.

A petition signed by sixty residents of Stanford Park urged street improvements in that section. The object of the petition was to initiate the necessary proceedings to start the proposed work which filed.

In all probability will begin next Several sites were offered for sale to the council for the proposed new city hall from various property owners within the city limits. All the applications were placed on file for future reference. City Attorney Whitworth explained that some of the attorneys in the Bear Gulch Water rate case had compromised in certain details of the suit and he asked that he be permitted to stipulate with the company on the property valuation of the concern. This permission was granted by the council. Mr. Whitworth said that this would shorten the case considerably. The value of the property was placed at $937,000.

Engineer Kneese said he had prepared a map of the territory, comprising the streets to be numbered and would be pleased to have the council go over the route with him before submitting the map. A tour of the district will be made today.

The adoption of ordinance number 42 fixing the compensation of the chief of police at $200 a month, a deputy at $150 and a third deputy to act as night watchman, poundmaster, street superintendent and janitor at a salary of $100 a month, occasioned a long discussion during which some heated remarks were indulged in. Ellis held that the duty of poundmaster he stricken from the ordinance, while Weeden and Dale claimed that the duties of a night watchman was not required, that the present force should do this work. Walker explained that the merchants in town demanded the expenditure. After considerable discussion the ordinance was passed with the duty of poundmaster eliminated, Dale and Weeden voting, no. The appointing of a janitor some time ago by Walker brought up a wide discussion. Weeden holding that when the former janitor left that he should have presented his resignation, so that a record could be had. Walker claimed that the chief of police had the authority to make the selection and when he had made the appointment he was in his rights as street commissioner.

Blake urged that the matter be dropped, that the janitor receive his usual pay. Weeden held that his claim against the council would be illegal. The discussion was abruptly cut short by the offering of ordinance number 43 by the city attorney fixing the place for the incarceration of prisoners at the San Mateo county jail at Redwood City. The ordinance was unanimously adopted.

No further business the council adjourned to December 4.

The annual bazaar of the Presbyterian church in the city of Masonic hall Wednesday evening was attended by a large crowd both afternoon and evening. A side splitting farce by nine ladies of the congregation brought round after round of applause. "Sewing for the Heavens" was the title of the play and the cast was as follows: Mrs. Judd, Mrs. Snover, the hostess; Mrs. Choate, M. S. Pinder, the president; Mrs. R. B. Powers, Mrs. Nellie Fletcher, the stranger; Grandmother Gibbs, Mrs. Bone, leaf but persistent; Mrs. Luella Huggins, Mrs. Bounce; Mrs. Strong, Mrs. Martin; Mrs. Meeker, Mrs. Lockridge, gentle and good; Mrs. Day, Mrs. Morris, a bride; Mrs. Mesly, Mrs. Aabel; the hired girl. The ladies played their parts well, showing much training. Professionals could not do any better.

Cities to Fight Reapportionment

By CLEM WHITAKER
Rural California, fresh from a decisive victory at the polls, must again defend that which it has won after eight years of struggle. Beaten two years ago when the measure was first placed before the people; defeated again in the Legislature and then repulsed for a third time when the proposition went before the voters at the general election this month, opponents of the farm plan of legislative reapportionment will make a fourth desperate attack on the program at the coming session of the Legislature.

The new city drive to block the so-called federal type reapportionment act, which would balance a rural and urban over in the Legislature, will come in the form of a proposed constitutional amendment, embodying what is known as the three-eighths-five-eighths plan. Under this measure, to be proposed by metropolitan foes of the farm bloc program, the cities would be given absolute sway in the Assembly, plus three-eighths of the votes in the Senate.

While the rural counties, theoretically, would still hold an edge in the Senate—having five-eighths of the voting strength—actually the new compromise act would have the effect of greatly decreasing the voice of the producing sections, as compared to the strength accorded them under the act approved at this month's general election.

Assemblyman Van Bernard of Butte City, commenting on the latest move of the urbanites says that the country districts of California must prepare to battle solidly at the forthcoming legislative session against any compromise. The proposed compromise, he said, would give the cities 15 votes in the Senate, whereas Proposition No. 1 approved on Nov. 6th, gives them but three votes in the upper house. This plan, he said, is fair and equitable, when it is considered ered that the Assembly will be apportioned on a strict population basis, placing the metropolitan territory in absolute control of that house.

RED CROSS FIGHTS DEATH AND DISEASE

Our Nation-wide Services Promote Health Preservation and Accident Prevention.

A nation-wide program for preservation of health and prevention of accidental death is one of the great services of the American Red Cross. Four bureaus, manned by experts, direct this work. They are the Public Health Nursing Service; the First Aid and Life Saving Service; the Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick Service; and the Nutrition Service.

These services aim at preservation of health through skilled nursing care; prevention of loss of life in accidents; prevention of illness through cleanliness in the home and knowledge of methods of care of the sick; and raising the standard of physical efficiency through proper eating.

This nation-wide campaign against disease and accidental death is conducted through a majority of the 3,532 Chapters of the Red Cross. It is a community campaign, fitted to the health problems of each section.

The Red Cross, through its Chapters, is the largest employer of trained Public Health nurses in rural work in the United States. In its campaign for preservation of health and prevention of disease it has aided in establishing 2,000 or more community nursing services.

At the national headquarters an enrollment of nurses is maintained, which forms a great nursing reserve. Under its Charter from Congress this Red Cross Nursing Service is the official reserve for the United States Army and Navy Nurse Corps. In addition, these nurses are available in time of disaster or epidemic. This reserve list of trained nurses has in 1928 reached its peak in number enrolled—there being now 47,000 nurses qualified under Red Cross regulations who may be mobilized in time of emergency.

The comprehensive, nation-wide program of instruction in First Aid and Life Saving maintained by the Red Cross is in answer to the appalling total of accidental deaths each year in the United States. In its First Aid instruction among firemen and police forces, in factories, railroad centers, great industries, and public utilities, the Red Cross annually reaches more than 160,000 men and women, whom it teaches to be alert, ready in case of accident, to apply first aid treatment.

The campaign against accidental deaths through drowning has been carried throughout the country, and there now are 175,506 men and women, boys and girls, qualified as Red Cross life savers, expert in resuscitation, etc.

Labor Head Asks Nation's Workers to Support Red Cross

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in Washington, calls upon the workers of the nation to support the twelfth annual roll call of the American Red Cross, November 11-29, in the following statement:

"Through the American Red Cross we find expression for some of our noblest ideals. It is an effective instrument for magnifying many times our personal service to humanity.

"In the face of great disasters, when the injured and homeless run into the thousands, there is little we can do individually. Consolidating our strength through membership in this great organization, our opportunity for service is unlimited.

We must not forget that every day is a day of disaster to thousands. Into homes where disaster strikes your Red Cross goes in your name to be friend and counselor to those upon whom misfortune has laid her heavy hand.

"As President of the American Federation of Labor, I hope and feel confident that the workers of the nation will respond to the Red Cross Roll Call and have a part in this organization's great work."

(Signed)
WILLIAM GREEN,
President
American Federation of Labor.

HALF MILLION PEOPLE AIDED BY RED CROSS IN HURRICANE RELIEF

Porto Rico and Florida Victims Helped by Prompt Action; $5,000,000 Given by Public.

One of the greatest disasters, in point of loss of life and devastation of homes, in which the American Red Cross has ever carried relief was the West Indies hurricane of September last, which swept across Porto Rico, parts of the Virgin Islands, the coast of Florida and north to end in torrential rains, flooding streams in a half dozen states. The known dead in all of the areas affected was 2,259, although it was admitted that the complete total of dead in Florida would never be known. The number of injured was estimated at 3,170. Approximately 20,000 buildings were destroyed and damaged.

At the height of the emergency the Red Cross was caring for 506, 410 people—that is, feeding and clothing them and arranging for whatever shelter was obtainable. As long as three weeks after the hurricane struck Porto Rico and Florida, the Red Cross was caring for 20,236 people who were sick, of these 236 in Florida, and the remainder in Porto Rico, where influenza and malaria were being treated to prevent epidemics of more drastic diseases. Large numbers of Red Cross nurses were active at both points.

In Florida more than 11,000 persons applied to Red Cross for assistance, and a great number of people in Florida and also in Porto Rico were being cared for in the matter of food, clothing and shelter as long as two months after the hurricane, while they awaited maturing crops which would enable them to again become self-sustaining.

For this relief task, the American public gave the American Red Cross a fund of $5,000,000—the sum set forth in a proclamation issued by President Coolidge a few days after news of the hurricane was received.

The relief given by the Red Cross in this great emergency, spread over such a wide territory of sea and land, was everywhere commended and special emphasis was placed upon the promptitude with which the organization responded. The hurricane struck Porto Rico September 13, and the news reached the United States the next day. Before nightfall, the national director of disaster relief for the Red Cross and a staff of four trained men had left Washington for Charleston, South Carolina, to board a navy destroyer which upon instruction of the President of the United States had been placed at command of the Red Cross by the Secretary of the Navy. And although the next day was Sunday, a Red Cross man arrived in New York to purchase a thousand tons of food for the Porto Ricans, already reported to be starving, and the Navy again placed a ship for the cargo at Red Cross command.

Late on Saturday evening there came another cable—a Red Cross nurse at St. Croix, in the Virgin Islands, addressed a plea to the mother organization in Washington and gave first warning of the plight of the people of the American possession, where no family in a population of 11,000 had escaped injury. In the meantime the Red Cross had notified its Florida Chapters that it stood ready for any service, in event the hurricane, headed toward them, did any damage. Not content with this, the Red Cross on Sunday night entrained a disaster relief director and six workers for Florida.

Money, food, clothing were dispatched immediately to both points, and before the end of the week the Red Cross was feeding a half million people.

This prompt response was made possible by the disaster relief organization the Red Cross has brought together and trained through a series of such national calamities.

Support of this work is through the annual Roll Call for membership. The goal in the twelfth annual Roll Call to be held Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, November 11 to 29, is 5,000,000 members.
